The U.S.-China Economic and Security Review Commission has changed the location of its public hearings on February 5, 2004, and February 6, 2004. Thursday's hearing will examine China's record of compliance with its WTO obligations to date and the process by which the U.S. monitors and enforces China's adherence to its WTO commitments. Friday's hearing will examine China's ongoing military modernization efforts and the implications for cross-Strait political-military relations and U.S. policy in the region. Both hearings will be held in Room 1310 of the Longworth House Office Building, located at South Capitol Street and Independence Avenue.

Also, both hearings will be broadcast over the Internet via LIVE video webcast. For more information, or to view the webcast during the proceedings, go to www.uscc.gov.
